

Littleton Independent

'American West' is theme for exhibit

“Rocky Mountain Autumn” is in the “American West” exhibit at the Depot Art Center Photo by Sam Howard.

Posted 3/27/09

Photographer Sam Howard’s “Rocky Mountain Autumn” is exhibited in the Depot Art Center’s anniversary show, “The American West,” which runs through May 23 at the gallery in the 1881 Santa Fe depot, which was converted to an art gallery by members of the Littleton Fine Arts Guild as a 1976 Bicentennial project. This particular train looks like the narrow gauge wonder that runs between Antonito, Colo., and Chama, N.M., during the warm months. (Littleton’s Old Forts group rode it on an aspen-bright day like this last September). The show will include original watercolors, oils, sculptures, photographs and textiles depicting the flavor of western states. Admission is free.

Gallery hours: 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesdays through Saturdays. 303-795-0781.